The Presenter

Presentation skills have become one of the basic skills for every person who works in the managerial level of any company. But unlike the technical skills required for a certain job, presentation skills are not given the proper attention. Though in fact, presentation skills can be one of the main key elements for excelling in companies and large business areas.

NEW

Difficult conversations at work will never come to an end. The fact that we as human beings have brains that produce around 50000 thoughts a day makes it almost impossible to have conversations that are miscommunication free.

That's why getting some ideas that help manoeuvre through an intense conversation at work is crucial.
